GLEE CLUB HAS SHOWS PROMISED

Enthusiastic Meeting Held Last Night

What might be called the first real practice was held by the Glee Club last night. The music, long delayed by the Customs, was on hand, and the selections created no small amount of enthusiasm among the members.

Eight of the finest Glee songs will be added this season to the Club's repertoire for the first concert to be held some time in December. This will require serious work but plenty of good fun and keen enjoyment will reward those who tackle it.

Despite the inclement weather the turnout was excellent. However, Mr. Key has asked that members attend every practice, if possible, in order to get the Club into shape quickly.

Dr. Perrin has graciously honored the Glee Club by accepting its honorary presidency. He has assured the Club of his interest in its welfare, and promised to give it his hearty support.

Once again last evening it was evinced that the members of this Club enjoy no small privilege in studying under such an able conductor as Mr. Key. His selection of songs was most successful last year, but the first of the songs this year bids fair to outshine even the former. Many requests have been received that the Club repeat the folk songs given last year, and Mr. Key will try to comply.

The next practice is on Wednesday at seven instead of Tuesday, as announced in yesterday's Daily.

FRESHMAN'S ISSUE MADE POSSIBILITY

Sophomores Generosity is Boom to "Daily"

FRIENDLY MOTIVE?

Friday's "Daily" Should be Ordered in Advance

Material is still solicited for the Freshman's issue of the "Daily" which will put in an appearance on Friday morning at the usual stands.

Due to an oversight on the part of the purchasing committees of the various Sophomore years, or perhaps to an overestimation of the number of collars to be decorated, the numerous Second Year executives find themselves with a surplus of green ink on hand. By a fairly unanimous vote it has been decided to give the verdant fluid to the Daily. It is believed that the Freshmen are in accord with the spirit behind the donation.

Much discussion took place as to the purpose to which the generous gift should be applied. Finally, after serious deliberation, the Daily staff has decided to undertake a novel experiment, that of using green to designate the Freshmen. Although decoration and desecration have been attempted with this colour, we feel that designation is a new departure. The Daily staff feels that it will die happy if it will have succeeded in handing down the custom of calling the Freshmen green. Although no slight to the aesthetic taste of McGill students is intended it is feared that the sight of green ink alone will fail to impress. It has therefore been decided to appeal to the sixth sense, the sense of humour. With this in view contributions of all kinds, and even in kind, are respectfully requested. No satire is too subtle, no burlesque too broad.

Friday's Daily will be called the Freshman's Issue, but it should be understood that it is to be written for them as also at them. Contributors should bear this in mind.

Packages containing manuscript for this issue should be expressed to the Daily office, under-ground floor, McGill Union, and designated clearly, "Freshman's Issue", and all contributions received before will be given the preference. The use of colored ink by contributors is not considered essential.

CERCLE FRANCAIS MEETS ON THURSDAY

Big Attendance Expected at Meeting

The opening meeting of one of the best known of the various societies connected with the university will take place at the Union on Thursday evening. On this date the Cercle Francaise will hold its first reunion of the season, to which all students interested in the study of the language are invited. Besides these English-speaking students who are desirous of increasing their knowledge of the language, French-speaking students should also make it a point to attend these meetings as the various subjects discussed are usually connected with French literature or political and economical conditions of the day.

There are many students in faculties where French courses as such are not given, who are, however, interested in its study. The Cercle has always in the past, many such students amongst its members and it is therefore hoped that men from all faculties will become regular members of the Cercle.

Discussions at these meetings are carried on wholly in the French language and members have always found this fact one of the most interesting and instructive parts of the meeting.

On Thursday evening the French professors of the staff have cordially accepted the invitation to address the Cercle and besides the fact that the usual brand of patisserie Francaise and Cafe-au-lait will be served, an enjoyable meeting is assured for all who attend.

WAS THIS ONE OF OUR PROFS?

A lecturer, talking about the nature of man, remarked that one point of distinction between human beings and animals consisted in the capacity for progress.

"Man," he exclaimed, "is a progressive being; other creatures are stationary. Take the ass for example. Always and everywhere it is the same creature. You have never seen, and you never will see, a more perfect ass than you see at the present moment."

Miss Wrong Delivers Enlightening Address

COMMITTEE FORMED
Racial Antagonism in Europe Hinders Education

Miss M. Wrong, speaking under the auspices of the S.C.S. in the Union yesterday at noon before a number of the professoriate and other prominent men around Montreal, dealt with the racial animosity existing between some of the smaller nations of Europe and in direct contrast to that co-operation of the universities of these countries, which may in the end lead these nations into more peaceful relations. At this meeting a committee was formed, the purpose of which is to try and help these students of Central Europe in whatever way they can.

In introducing Miss Wrong, Mr. MacKay, of the S.C.A., said that the purpose in bringing these people together to hear her was three-fold; first, that they might meet Miss Wrong, who has been active in Canadian Student Movement for some years, secondly, that they might gain some understanding of conditions in Central European universities as a matter of international importance and lastly that the point of view with which the Student Christian Movement meets such conditions might be made known.

In opening her address, Miss Wrong spoke of the difficulty of reorganization in some of the European countries owing to the instability of the currency and the racial disturbances and animosities that are appearing in unexpected places. For instance she said countries such as Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania were at loggerheads with each other since the war, whereas previous to the war they were comparatively friendly. She said that to observers and tourists these countries appeared quite wealthy and prosperous, owing to the lively appearance of their clubs and cafes but that such was not really the case, as these resorts were patronized by war profiteers and other people of that kind. In Russia, she said, in which there has been a complete transformation of government, the poor peasants are, perhaps, better off, but the middle classes have suffered greatly, especially the professional people of fixed salaries, who feel the effects of the fluctuating currency more than the peasant classes.

Miss Wrong traced this general condition into the universities, where she said the research work was greatly hindered by lack of funds to secure instruments and books. It appears that professors in most of these European universities have found it almost impossible to procure literature of a date later than (Continued on Page 4)

The Freshman's Issue of the "Daily" which is to appear on Friday is still in need of contributions from students. Articles, stories, or drawings may be sent in at any time and will be welcomed. All contributions should be marked "Freshman's Issue" and placed in the "Daily" box in the basement of the Union or handed to a member of the news board.

McGILL GRADS. ALREADY HAVE POSITIONS

17 Out of 20 Have Been Definitely Placed

FOUR ON V.O.N.

Two Are Instructors in The Nurses' Training School

Eighty-five per cent of the graduate nurses who received certificates from the School for Graduate Nurses of McGill University last May have already secured positions, according to a report presented by Miss Flora Madeline Shaw, R.N., director of the school, to the advisory committee of the school.

Out of a graduating class of 20, said the report, 17 have been definitely placed. The class has been scattered all over the continent. Four are on the staff of the Victorian Order of Nurses in Montreal; one is on the staff of the same association in Ottawa; one is in hospital social service work at the Montreal General Hospital; two are instructors in the nurses' training school of the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal; one is an instructor in the training school of the Montreal General Hospital; one is an instructor in the training school of the Jeffery Hale Hospital, Quebec; one is an instructor in the school of the Children's Hospital, Winnipeg; one is an instructor in the Lebanon Hospital, New York; one is night supervisor, and another supervising instructor, at the Mount Hamilton Hospital, Hamilton; one is an instructor in the General Hospital, Medicine Hat; one is superintendent of the Victoria Hospital, Fredericton; and one is supervisor in the Samaritan Hospital, Boston. An eighteenth graduate is temporarily placed.

Despite a lack of candidates for one of the three courses offered, the total registration is the greatest the school has ever had. Total registration this year numbers 44, and eight others have made application but have not yet registered. Last year there were 36 and the year before 37. The increase is due principally to a larger number of partial students. There are (Continued on page 4)

WHY IS THE SOCIETY MAN A BUSINESS FAILURE?

Why is the successful society man, a business failure? Why is the man who holds interest, makes friends and gains popularity, often a failure as an executive?

The fundamental reason is that he carries his receptive, social attitude into business instead of assuming a dominating business attitude.

He listens to everyone, tries to please all—yields to their opinions and wishes. He is too easy with men, and the ones he dies most for impose upon him.

If he is to be successful in business, he must be serious, strong, independent, aggressive. He must not be too receptive. Once set out to do a thing—he must not yield.

If you are a "good fellow," don't let your friends work for you. Try the forceful attitude. You'll get more respect and less imposition. Your advancement will be sure.

THE UNION.

When so much discussion takes place at the Students Society meetings with reference to the McGill Union, when the financial success of the Students Society depends to such an extent upon the showing made by the Union, and when such efforts are being put forth by the officials of the Union to improve and to make it more attractive, a few words should not be out of place in an attempt to impress upon the undergraduate the influence and the opportunity he may gain by maintaining contact with this centre of student life.

The McGill Union is one of those institutions which is so prominent in Student activities, that very little attention or notice is given to it. It holds in its bosom the Editorial precincts of the "Daily," the office and meeting place of the Students' Council, and Athletic Association. In it are held all those meetings which decide the policy and action of the great Student body and hence is literally the heart of the University.

When a dance, conference or concert is to be held by any organization it is the elaborate Ball Room of the Union which makes its occurrence possible. It is well to ever keep in mind the great purpose for which the Union was created, that is, for the benefit and use of all Students and to act as a nucleus for all those organizations which make College life worth while. If we really should come to the time when the McGill Union was non-existent, the Student would begin to realize what a part it plays in his life.

Among the many attractions of the Union are, of course, the Billiard Room, one of the best in the city, also the Lounge and Reading Rooms. On the ground floor is a tobacco stand at which is also to be found chocolates, etc., the sale of which goes to help the upkeep of the Union. It is a duty for every student to purchase his supplies here and do his share in patronizing the Union and upholding such a valuable institution. The Union attendants are always courteous, and always show every attention to the Students.

There is a surprisingly small number of Students who make it a habit to drop into the Union regularly and it is the hope of the Executive in charge of the Building that this number be increased rapidly, now that College activity is on the incline. It is especially valuable to First Year men, for the Union is the only place where they can mingle with Upper Year men and get in touch with the activities for which in the future they will be responsible. Let us hope that every one will respond with the old time spirit and boost the Union by their presence there.

TOO MANY MEN GO TO COLLEGE

So Says President of Dartmouth

Most startling to American readers was the recent statement of President Ernest M. Hopkins, of Dartmouth College, in an address to the student body, that "Too many men are going to college. The opportunities for securing an education by way of a college course are definitely a privilege and not at all a universal right." The educator advocated, in effect, the recognition of an aristocracy of intellect as a practical method of checking the rapid increase in college and university enrollment.

The Dartmouth president, it would seem, has proposed the only feasible solution to the problem of overcrowded colleges, a problem which has become very real in recent years. Universities and large colleges have suddenly awakened to find themselves woefully inadequate in available facilities to the unexpected deluge of students. The inevitable results has been, of course, a lowering of standards everywhere. Class and lecture rooms have been crowded, sections which not long ago never ran over a hundred have suddenly mounted in enrollment to several hundred, and it has become impossible to require work of a quality equal to that of ten years ago. Anyone capable of making the grades necessary to graduation from high school may now enter a college or university, take a sort of business course, and graduate at the end of four years, capable of earning forty dollars where he had never been to college he might have earned only twenty.

Standards are lower. Classical education is coming to be almost ignored. Spring a Latin word of the average student and he will reward you with a blank stare, or a "Talk United States!" Classical allusions mean absolutely nothing to him. The Rubaiyat and "the red ship" are often synonymous in his vocabulary. His criteria for judging literature are Captain Billy's Whizz-Bang, the campus publications, and the Detroit News. A cultural foundation for a technical or professional education is no longer required. Specialization, once a term to conjure with, has been so abused that colleges, and specially universities, in the case of the vast majority of students attending them, are little more than big schools for vocational training. Spanish and "business ad" are the only requirements for a thorough ticket to the Isles of the Blest.

This lowering of standards is attributable directly to the rapid increase in the number of students seeking a college education. Ten years ago the man who went to college was the exception, especially if he went to a university. Only the students of really superior intellect went beyond high school unless to some technical or business school. The college man in all but an insignificant minority of cases made good when he graduated. His collegiate training was the necessary rounding-out process which enabled him to hold responsible positions and to be of definitely more value than a high school graduate. Today there is a strong tendency to wind up as a store clerk or an employee in some establishment where a high school graduate could do the work fully as well. Easy courses, requiring only average mentality and a fair amount of industry, have been placed on the curricula in order to accommodate the students who want a college education but who are wasting their own and the college's time by seeking one. Class attendance and an ability to answer catch questions are too frequently all that is necessary to insure a passing grade, and the real scholar is swamped by the mad rush of university students who should be in a business school.

If the increase is to continue in college enrollment, some plan must be devised for its assimilation or check, and President Hopkins has seemed to find the solution when he says that too many are attending our colleges and the flood should be stopped.

Without doubt the most difficult admission for a modern American educator to make is that of an intellectual aristocracy. Democracy in the abstract has become, naturally enough, so much of a fetish to Americans that they feel constrained to think in terms of it at all times and under all circumstances lest they be thought to be plotting the overthrow of the government. There is no intellectual democracy. There never can be as long as one man's mind is superior to his brother's. Politicians may rave, and pull opportune bunting from their vest pockets, but there is not now and never will be democracy in the field of mental achievement. The abiding nobility is that of the mind—the aristocracy.

RHYMING REMARKS The Games

(By Sandy P. Roe.)

Of course we all went to the game, all who had the price and tho' we didn't like the score the rooting sure was "nice". The yell had "pep", right to the end, as much as at the first, for no one seemed down-hearted, tho' inwardly he cursed. As I heard one girl remark, "what matters though they inn; they cannot break our spirit; just look at good ole Flinn. 'I' looker at him and he again had fallen in the fight, but lo! the rooters shouted that the hero was all right."

To me it seems satirical that, when a man is "out" (perhaps just half an inch from death) then all the rooters shout "what's the matter with So-and-So". "He's all right!" when p'raps the dear old blighter will never see the light. Why can't we modify the thing. SPELL OUT the hero's name. Then everyone will know just whom we wish to praise or blame. Let's take a case: we'd spell out FLIN and then shout "Flanagan". 'T'would sound far more effective. It tells the world, our man. Then pause, and give a peppy yell, will nerve them for the fight, and while McGILL has men like them. "She's all right."

"I KNOW WHERE THE FLIES GO"

First Boarder: I didn't like that raisin pie we had for dinner.
Did you?
His Room-mate: But that was lemon pie!

ocracy of the intellect. It used to be said that you could always tell a king from a serf no matter under what circumstances you might meet them, and the same holds true today. Place an intellectual king alongside an intellectual serf and watch the difference. Take the inbred inequality out of relative mental fitness and you will have no more leaders, no more progress or startling achievement. You will have a race of mental enuncs. The very ones who cry "democracy in education" are in most cases themselves breathing examples of the very thing they decry.

It would be a splendid thing if everyone could go to college and by the expenditure of four years and five thousand dollars become a beacon light of history, but everyone cannot. Ten or fifteen years ago many of the real intellectuals never had the opportunity to go beyond high school; today everyone goes—it is almost as great a fad as the radiophone. And the result is always the same—the mental aristocracy is only brought into greater relief by the four years of college and the proportion remains unchanged.

If, as seems inevitable, definite steps must be taken to raise, or at least maintain, the standards of American universities, the only possible solution would appear to be that proposed by President Hopkins, a restriction of college attendance to those who definitely prove themselves mentally superior. A horrible yell would go up, and the local demagogues would storm, but the result would be on the whole vastly beneficial. A lot of professors would lose their jobs or start new colleges for the culls, but the select remainder both of faculty and students, would breathe a sigh and enjoy to the full the delightful sensation of getting and of giving an education.

WIDE SCOPE FOR SOCIAL SERVICE

Future Points to Expansion of This Course

Wider scope and more extensive service, which were given as the principal reasons of the re-organization last summer of the Department of Social Service of McGill University, have already been realized to a considerable extent, according to reports presented at a recent meeting of the committee of management of the department, which is now officially known as the Department of Social Science and Social Service.

Owing to the interlocking of the department with the Faculty of Arts, which assures that there is no overlapping in time or course arrangements, and which gives the lectures an academic status and value counting towards requirements for the degree of Bachelor of Arts, the number of persons registered for social science and service course has been greatly increased.

Under the old arrangement, last year there was a total of 28 men and women following courses given by the Department of School Service. This year the total number so far registered for regular courses is 70, while 12 others have registered in advance for the extension course in social science, which opened last night. Actual registration for this course will not be complete for at least a fortnight, and it is likely that to the registration for the regular courses in social science or service quite a few more names will be added during the session, particularly in cases where students desire to take partial courses only. The extension course total will also be swelled by a course in "Social Problems", which will be given in the second term, under the auspices of the Extension Department.

Just as the present Department of Social Science and Social Service has a dual personality, one in the Faculty of Arts and one independent of any faculty, so its registration falls into two classes: those taking faculty courses, and those taking non-academic courses in addition to faculty courses. The training of social service workers is the aim of the second class, in centre-distinction to the aim of the first class, which is simply to inculcate principles of social science and service into persons who intend to take up work in which such knowledge will be of use to them.

Diplomas and certificates are granted to successful students the courses for social service workers. Diploma students take a two-year course, and university matriculation is a prerequisite to entry. Certificate students take a one-year course, and matriculation is not required for entry. This is the first year that McGill has had diploma students, three having registered as such. Five persons have registered as certificate students, compared to six last year. Six students have registered as partial students in non-academic courses, whereas last year a total of 25 were registered as partial students. This is not a decrease, however, as the majority of partial students this year have been registered in the faculty courses in social science.

The courses given in the Faculty of Juniors on their attendance at meetings.

R. V. C.
An important meeting will be held to-day, October 24th, at 1 o'clock. The place for the meeting will be given out at the English lecture. Everyone in the Year is expected to attend.

ARTS-LAWS IN CLOSE GAME WITH MEDS.

Second Win for Arts-Law
SCORE 2-1

Deep Mud Made Brilliant Play Impossible

The Arts-Law football outfit won from the Meds. by a 2-1 score in a muddy battle on the Old Campus yesterday afternoon, a large crowd watching the contest, in spite of the drenching rain.

The players were out in full force some minutes before the time set for play to start, and students from all faculties stopped to watch what promised to be a hard battle. However, a short time before the whistle blew for the kick-off the rain, which had been threatening all day, began to fall and the field took on the appearance of a small lake.

Nothing daunted the players, took their places and the game started amidst the shouts of the spectators. Some of the latter seemed to be oblivious to the weather conditions. The Meds. got away in the first period most decidedly. Chisholm, who starred for the Meds., making two spectacular end runs at the very beginning of the game, and by some steady playing the Meds. scored a rouge within a few minutes of play.

In the second period the Arts-Law team showed to good advantage, pushing their opponents back and securing the ball on a fumble near the line, scored a rouge. The first half closed with the score at 1-1.

By the time the second half started the field was a sea of mud and one player could not be distinguished from another, as mud was smeared generously on all parts of their person. The ball was heavy and made kicking extremely difficult. The play in the third period was very even, but Arts-Law succeeded in scoring one more rouge, which proved to be the winning point of the struggle.

In the last period the Meds. put up a desperate fight, but could not force their opponents back.

Offsides were numerous owing to the slippery ground, the players sliding into the ball unintentionally. Four penalties were imposed as a result of the fistic efforts of several members of both sides.

This is the second win for the Arts-Law team, and from present indications they will, to say the least, make a strong bid for the silverware.

The line-up was as follows:
Arts - Law - Stone, Puddicombe (capt.), Shaw, Teakle, Martineau, Terroux, Cowan, Bell, Falconer, Bronson, Gardner, Meyers, Anderson.
Meds.—Brown, Abey, Cook, Fullerton, Lynch, Caldwell, Zink, Chisholm (capt.), Boyle, Grier, Walker, McLean.

ARTS '25 WIN FROM SCIENCE '25

Take First Game by Large Score

The inter-class indoor baseball season was ushered in yesterday afternoon at the High School gymnasium by teams representing Arts '25 and Science '25, and resulted in a win for the former by a score of 20-3.

As the score indicates, the contest was a one-sided one. Captain Gordie Nairn trotted out a heavy hitting team that fell on the offerings of the opposing pitchers with such a vim and vigor that each man managed to make one or more hits, and some completed the game with a perfect batting average. The team also played well defensively, Bronson's bewildering speed, coupled with some sensational fielding by Miller at short, tending to break up any rallies that the Science team attempted to stage.

For the losers, James, although unsuccessful in putting an end to the batting rampage of the winners, after he had replaced Burland in the second inning, was nevertheless the best, his hitting and base-running featuring.

The line-up of the teams and the score by innings follows:

Arts '25—Eddy, c.; Bronson, p.; Nairn (captain), 1b; Ellison, 2b; Rapp, 3b; Miller, r.s.s.; Armstrong, 3b; MacPhail, 1f.; Melcouson, r.f.
Science '25—Taylor and Granik, c.; Burland and James, p.; Dingman, 1b; Abbot, 2b; Norton, l.s.s.; Kyle, r.s.s.; McNaughton, r.f.
James and Burland, 3b; Merritt, 1f.; Arts '25 ..... 2660321—20
Science '25 ..... 0003000—3
Umpires—McCullough and Wright.

FISTS, FALLS & FOILS

Coach George Smith made his first appearance of the season at the wrestling practice yesterday afternoon. The mentor's first lesson to the disciples of "Zybyssco" was a short talk on wrestling skill.

The coach laid great stress on the sportsmanship involved in the game.

A true wrestler has all his plans made up, and the various holds are followed in logical sequence.

The "toe hold", the "strangle hold" and the hammer lock are barred in intercollegiate wrestling.

Taylor, a newcomer, tips the scales at 210, and should prove an interesting match to the heavyweight aspirants.

Rumple-Howes and Armstrong were each in charge of a squad of huskies, who were rolling around the mats, practising the various holds.

Jimmy Bryant is again out with the wrestlers. Bryant is in the 110-lb. class and lives up to his rep.

The 158-lb. huskies include such worthies as "Art" Vineberg, G. E. Shaw and J. Armstrong.

Howes-Mader and Clement are contenders of the 135-lb. class.

McNaughton, Cotman and Montgomery vie with each other for the supremacy of the 145-pounders.

Coach Ernie Robinson is in charge of the boxing squads. Practices are held twice a week at Molson's Hall.

Fistic fans have splendid opportunities to develop their prowess at these practices.

The gentlemen of the cauliflower ear can obtain all information regarding the Boxing Club from "Windy" Brewer.

A smoker, including three hurricane bouts, will be staged by the boxing enthusiasts on November 8th at St. Anne de Bellevue.

ENGLISH RUGGERS ARE IMPROVING

Large Turn-out of New Men Strengthens Team

Legg and Patterson, of Track Club fame, turned out yesterday with the English Rugby squad at their practice on the Old Campus. Both these men are three-quarter players with considerable experience, and should round out the backfield very nicely.

No regular practice game was held yesterday, as the weather made this almost impossible, but a good scrum practice for the forwards, and running and tackling practice for the backs, was indulged in. The forwards seem to be rounding into form a little better as time goes on, and should be able to hold well against the heavy Montreal English team scrum on Saturday. The forward line is the weak spot of the team, as with new three-quarter candidates turning out nearly every day, there seems to be no doubt that in this department of the game McGill will be better than the Montrealers, but the scrum needs to show more improvement to come up to the class of next Saturday's opponents.

The decisive victory gained by the Montreal English team last Saturday, when they defeated the Ottawa team by thirty to nil shows that they have a powerful team, even though the Ottawa representatives were extremely weak, and had very little opportunity to play together. However, the McGill supporters are counting on speed and condition to win for them, and if the squad continues to improve all this week there is no reason why they should not win on Saturday and go into the final for the MacTier Cup.

FENCERS STARTED WORK YESTERDAY

Prospects Point to a Bright Season

The Fencers held their first practice yesterday afternoon in the Diocesan College. There was a rather small turnout, probably owing to the unfavorable weather.

Aiken, of Arts '25, the club representative, explained briefly the purpose of the organization, and also explained the question of payment of fees.

When interviewed privately, Aiken said that the club was making preparations for a record season. New equipment is being ordered from Paris, and nothing will be spared which will tend to make the club a success. Aiken also wishes to ask all those who are intending to enter the club, to do so as soon as possible, so that they may begin early to practice and get into condition for the assault-at-arms. He will be glad to see anyone interested in the club and its doings and will give any further information which may be required.

GYMNASTS MAKE START IN WORK

First Practice Held Last Night

The Gym. Club last night held its first practice in preparation for the intercollegiate meet to be held at Varsity next March. Mr. Finley put the men through a light work-out, and outlined the year's activities. While the turnout was rather small, there were quite a few men who will try to catch a place on the team to replace members of last year's championship team who graduated this spring.

It will be hard to find substitutes for Scott and Holland, but a survey of the freshmen shows some very promising members from the Montreal High gym. squad, and MacDonald College will contribute at least one man of senior calibre. Besides this, there are some of last year's second string men who have a good chance to move up to senior company if they work hard.

Last March the local team succeeded in winning the meet from Varsity by a very small margin. This can be repeated only if the freshmen who have had experience in apparatus work will turn out and show Coach Finley what they are capable of doing.

The points in the competition are awarded largely for the manner in which the work is executed, rather than for difficulty. This will make it easier for a man to make the team who knows only simple movements, but who can do them neatly, than one who does more advanced work in a disjointed way.

The year's programme includes several interesting events. At present an Intercollegiate Union is being formed, and there is a chance that R.M.C. may enter a team in the competition next spring.

It is planned to have a preliminary competition with some local organization such as M.A.A.A. or Central "Y". Besides this, there will be the historic Wicksteed competition, which embraces indoor track events and calisthenics, as well as the apparatus work.

In this connection it might be pointed out what an excellent opportunity the Gym. Club offers to freshmen. Dr. Harvey has donated a cup for the freshman obtaining the highest standing in the Wicksteed competition. This gives a newcomer the chance to compete with men who have had no more experience than himself, and prepares him for the intercollegiate team. Members of the team are awarded a large plain M if they win the championship, and this gives a freshman an opportunity to win first grade class numerals. Attendance at the practices will, of course, give exemption from the regular gym. classes held in Molson Hall.

With the last of the intercollegiate football games on the home grounds over, it is time for those who cannot play football to settle down to some method of getting the athletic activity so necessary for a well-rounded college course. The Gym. Club will welcome any men who wish to turn out Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights at 6.00 in the High School gym.

Members of last year's team will give individual instruction to all newcomers, and Mr. Finley will be on hand to give special coaching to anyone needing it. In addition to this, it is hoped that some of the former gym. stars such as Scott, Holland and Werry will come around once in awhile to help develop a team which will be able to keep one championship under its present colors.

FRESHETTES TO BE ENTERTAINED

Dean Laing to Honour Delta Sigma Society

Elsewhere in this issue appears an announcement of a Delta Sigma Society meeting to be held on Thursday, October 26th, at 4.15 in the R.V.C. Common Room. This meeting, which will take the form of a tea, will be one of the most important and interesting of the year. Dean Laing, of the Arts Faculty, although he is a very busy man, has kindly promised to be present and give a short address. This is the first time Dean Laing has spoken to the members of the R.V.C., although his ability as a speaker is well known. His presence is a very great honor to the Society and his address should interest all members. At the conclusion of the meeting tea will be served so that informally a welcome may be extended to the freshmen. For their benefit it might be explained that the Delta Sigma Society is the Literary and Debating Society of the College. On the results of the contests held under its auspices two points are awarded for "the banner", which is competed for annually by the four college years. This Society, therefore, occupies a very important place in college life and should interest every member. All undergraduates of the R.V.C. are members, without the payment of any extra fee or without any other formality. The members of R.V.C. '26 are especially requested to consider this notice as a very cordial invitation to attend this and any other meetings of the Society.

Just what has happened to fifty gallons of high grade alcohol is the question that is puzzling University California authorities at the present. No doubt those who could throw light on the subject are in no condition to do so.

The absence of the alcohol was discovered several days ago by Purchasing Agent Newton Hovey and after a quiet investigation which netted nothing, the police were called in to assist in the locating of either the alcohol or the culprits. The missing alcohol is part of a shipment of sixteen barrels containing 808 gallons of spirits received at the warehouse the latter part of September. It is used in laboratory work and is kept in a building provided with special locks to guard against thefts.

What is bothering the authorities more than anything is the fact that all the locks on the warehouse were in good condition and had not been tampered with. It is declared that the barrel of alcohol could not have been removed from the warehouse single-handed and that the use of a truck would have been necessary to get the stuff away. All in all it looks like an inside job.

At Carnegie Tech. the traditional pageant of the "Burial of the Hatchet" marks the cessation of strife between the freshmen and sophomores. A real hatchet is buried (and immediately dug up again by souvenir hunters), after which the new men are initiated into the customs and atmosphere of the institution.

The first international collegiate debate ever held on this side of the ocean took place recently at Bates College, Lewiston, Maine. This debate between members of Oxford College and Bates College found representative college youths of America face to face with the youths of England's foremost college, ready to uphold the policy of the United States in her attitude toward the League of Nations.

Senator Cornelius Cole, a member of the class of '47 of Wesleyan University, celebrated his one hundredth birthday in September. Nevertheless, he journeyed to Middletown, Conn., last June, from Los Angeles, and had the degree of Doctor of Laws conferred on him. In spite of his age he is an active lawyer, and has a case scheduled in the Los Angeles Court this month.

Co-eds at Northwestern have agreed to have no social engagements with University men on Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays during the coming year. The pledge is taken because the girls believe that too many dates interfere with a college man's athletics and the school will suffer if the athletes do not have the proper time for training, according to the president of the women's self-government association.

Among the 6,000 odd students registered this fall at Harvard, Colonel George H. Lyon, Jr., of Nelson, Neb., is the oldest. Col. Lyon is 72 and in his third year of post-graduate work.

Chicago, Ill., Coach A. A. Stagg, football mentor at the University of Chicago, has started a campaign against students betting on athletic contests. Letters have been sent to campus organizations asking their co-operation.

Lafayette, Ind., Eight ears of corn on a stalk more than one foot high is the record that Professor Paul Weatherwax, of the botany department of Purdue University, attained in one plant.

The stalk is of normal width and is found in the professor's miniature corn field in the rear of Biology Hall. In this field are about 15 stalks of this sort which are afflicted with brachysm. This is a disease that affects corn in such a way that it is dwarfed in height but normal in width.

The plants were developed from normal corn by self-pollination for the purpose of furthering the study of corn disease, Professor Weatherwax said.

If it were not for a new heating system, which has been installed in the Power House, Smith College might have been forced to close its doors this winter. But as it is, about 35,000 barrels of oil are ordered or are on hand, which is the amount needed for fuel.

Morgantown, W. Va., Students at West Virginia University are determined to have wrestling restored to the programme of athletics events tho they may have to pay the financial freight.

About six weeks ago the university board of control eliminated the mat sport on the ground that it was not self-supporting. A bond for $5,000 subscribed by 500 students was filed with university authorities to guarantee the payment of any deficit.

Chicago, Alonzo Stagg, coach at the University of Chicago, has two football problems on his mind to-day. One is to defeat Princeton, which plays here October 28, and the other is Four class meetings of Med. '26 have been held since the beginning of the term. A report was presented showing the financial standing of the class, and after some discussion, the class fee for the year was voted upon.

SERIOUS PROBLEMS

Would Eliminate Several Rough Features of the Game

The communication printed below was received by the Sporting Editor of the "McGill Daily" from a committee of graduates, who met for the purpose of discussing the question of a proposed change in the rules of playing Canadian Rugby football. The letter is published with a view to acquainting the student with the details of what at present looms as a serious problem:

Montreal, October 22, 1922.

Sporting Editor,

McGill Daily, Montreal.

Dear Sir,—That a change is needed in the style of play of our fall national sport there seems to be no doubt. In view of recent misfortunes on the grid-iron it is the consensus of opinion among those who are directly connected with the game that unless the rules, as they exist at present, are modified considerably, the game runs the risk of falling into the discard along with the now almost defunct game of put and take which once flourished throughout the Dominion.

The changes which we propose are calculated to reduce to a minimum the risk of personal injury and yet not to seriously affect the attractiveness of the sport.

The two-man buck must go. All line plunging is too risky and should be done away with. We need only append as proof the following excerpt from the "Daily" files of 1906: "All McGill mourns the unfortunate accident that occurred yesterday to Cero McPartridge, the stellar line plunger of the Commerce football team. While running down the stairs of the dressing room Cero fell and twisted his ankle. This unfortunate injury is expected to keep him out of signal practice for some time." The dangers which beset a line plunger are apparent line plunging must go!

Tackling the man with the ball is another dangerous feature of our game as it is played today, an din our opinion should be abolished. It has been estimated that in the Canadian game more men have been tackled while carrying the ball than in all other plays put together, and injuries are frequently the result. Teams guilty of tackling should incur the 15-yard penalty for holding.

It has been found that many casualties have been incurred as the result of men going into block kicks. We suggest that the most effective way in which to curb this evil is to abolish punting. This will encourage end runs, a far more accurate method of placing the ball down the field.

A glimpse at some of the old files of the College paper, has revealed the fact that there are on record several cases where players wearing the Red and White have been injured seriously by crashing into the goal posts. It is, therefore, deemed advisable by the committee that these obstacles be removed, and consequently in view of the added difficulty, drop kicks and converts should count double, giving 6 points for a field goal and 2 for a convert.

The removal of the goal posts will make difficult the determining of the exact position of the goal line, therefore, let the goal line have no exact position. Under the new rules its location will be determined at interesting stages in the game by consultation between the head linesman and the captain of the team in possession of the ball.

There are several other innovations which we would suggest with a view to improving the sport. The game in its fine points is as yet undeveloped. At present only the three half-backs can fumble the ball. In the interest of open play, this privilege should be extended to the whole team.

We must now deal with what is in our opinion of far-reaching importance. Careful observation on our part has revealed that almost all the penalties in the past three years have been directly due to the referee. This is indisputable. That position must be abolished, the referee must go.

Further, it is very apparent that at present the game is slowed up too much by casualties. These should and must be discouraged. Men suffering injuries should be ruled off the field.

A perusal of recent issues of the various McGill papers reveals that several if ever is the score indicative of the play and of the difference in the two teams. We, therefore, urge that the method of determining the winners by score be done away with, that they be determined by a conference between the captains of the opposing teams. We, the drafters of these rules, foreseeing the possibility of a tie under the proposed plan and realizing the awkwardness of the resulting situation, have come to the conclusion that in such a case the game should be considered a draw.

The present day tendency towards radicalism is entirely too prevalent and we submit that the game in its fundamentals remain unchanged.

Respectfully submitted,

INTERCEPTED PASS BEATS ORANGE TEAM

Syracuse Loses to Pittsburgh in Final Period

SCORE 21—14

Syracuse Outplays Rivals
But Breaks Were in Favor of Panthers

Spearing a forward pass tossed by Simmons, Syracuse quarterback, late in the fourth period, "Tiny" Hewitt, 200-pound full-back of the Pittsburgh University eleven, became a hero when he sprinted 70 yards behind excellent interference which was formed hurriedly for him and won the game for the Panthers from Syracuse by a score of 21 to 14.

Only a few seconds before the giant full-back of Glenn Warner's team made his sensational dash to victory defeat stared the Panthers in the face, but they put up a grim battle and held the Syracuse players on their own 1 yard line and took the half way from them.

A Pittsburgh punt followed and the Syracuse tried shooting forward passes. Hewitt was in the way of one and when it nestled in his arms he was off like a flash for the Syracuse goal line. Three Panthers gathered around him and he did not have much difficulty in covering the last 40 yards of his journey. Williams booted the extra count, which sent 12,000 supporters of the Orange eleven home in a sad frame of mind.

With seven minutes to play in the last quarter Syracuse worked the ball close to Pitt's goal line, and with two yards to go on the last down Frugone made up his mind to try a goal from the field, but a switch was made and when the assault came on the Panther line for the distance the plunge failed and Pitt took the half away.

The game was one of the most spectacular ever staged in the Archbold Stadium. Pitt got off to a flying start, for in less than four minutes they had scored a touchdown. Zimmerman who was in the backfield to catch one of John's punts allowed the ball to slip through his fingers and it was recovered by Pitt inside Syracuse's 25-yard line. Pitt opened up its broadside and in less than a half dozen plays the ball was on the two-yard line, from where Colona crashed into centre for a touchdown. Williams kicked the goal.

Late in the period Syracuse started a rush for the Pitt goal line and just before the whistle blew for the end of the quarter had the ball on Pitt's 2-yard mark. At the start of the second quarter Syracuse was held for downs. After a punt by Johnson, Syracuse again worked the ball down to the Pitt goal line and finally Fullback Anderson smashed centre for a touchdown. McBride kicked the goal, which knotted the score at 7 points.

After four minutes of play in the third quarter McBride recovered a fumble for Syracuse on Pitt's 30-yard line, and from there by short plunges Syracuse took the ball to the six-yard line. Then Kellogg went around right end for a touchdown. But Syracuse was not stay out in front long, for on the next kickoff Flanagan, a Pitt substitute, carried the ball back thirty-five yards to midfield.

Then followed two rushes and a forward pass from Flanagan to J. C. Anderson, and the ball was on Syracuse's 20-yard line. Hewitt got three yards and Flanagan squirmed and fought his way for the other nineteen yards through the right side of the line. Williams proved equal to the occasion and kicked the goal, which again tied the score.

In the last quarter Syracuse completely outplayed Pitt, but Hewitt broke loose after taking Simmons's forward pass and won the game.

The Pitt team was without the advice of Glenn Warner, Panther coach, who was ill at his home in Pittsburgh. The team was in charge of Alec Stevenson, line coach.

FIRST QUALM FOR FRESHMEN

Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the unlearned,

Nor standeth not in the way of professors,

Nor sitteth not in the back seat of the classroom;

But his delight is in the laws of old Newton

And on his laws he doth meditate day and midnight.

And he shall be like a grind with his feet in hot water,

That bringeth forth good marks in examination.

Whose allowance doth not wither;

And whatsoever he propoundeth shall be recorded forever.

The unlearned are not so.

But are like the sheep which are summoned to slaughter.

Therefore the unlearned shall not stand in the examination,

Nor shirkers in the throng on Olympus.

For the Dean knoweth the way of delinquents;

But the way of the studious continues forever.

MCGILL GRAD WRITES HOME FROM AFRICA

James Lloyd B.D. is Now a Missionary

FORMER DAILY MAN

Pictures Life in Portuguese
West Africa

It is a far cry from a mission field in Portuguese, West Africa, to the campus of Old McGill but that life is abundantly interesting an dvaried there is proved by the following letter received from James Lloyd B.D., formerly a member of the News Board of the McGill Daily, and now a missionary in Bic Angola, Portuguese, West Africa. Mr. Lloyd graduated from the Congregational College in 1920, and shortly after that went to Portugal, where he spent some time in the study of Portuguese language before proceeding to his missionary post on the African continent. Extracts from the letter follow: "I wish you could see some of the boys! They are just coming in from the villages and some of them have very little to wear. Just the other day some boys came from our Tembo out station, and all they had was what they were wearing and that was a piece of deer skin round their loins. I suppose that they never owned a blanket and of course, sheets and pillows are never used here by the natives. They feel that they have a good bed if they get to cover them. The boys that have come in from Tembo are not of the Ovimondo but of the Chokwe tribe and then also we have some of the Luchasi tribe, but a sthey all know Umbundu we shall manage alright. We are hoping that these boys will stay in our school for a number of years, so that we shall be able to train them and then later send them back to their own people as teachers. Of course this will take some time as we shall train them to teach Portuguese, and also to preach the Gospel, for after all that is what we are here for. The teaching of Portuguese is a great drawing card as so many of the boys and girls want to learn the language. We also try to teach them something of carpentry and bricklaying and also tailoring so that they will be able to earn their living when they leave us, although if they prove apt teachers we like to keep them for our schools and send them out to open schools in the villages and teach the children and preach the Gospel and in that way we are able to do our best work. You will be interested to know that I have bought a bicycle and that it proving a great help. The roads here are not even as good as the prairie trails of Western Canada, but in spite of the bumps I get along alright, especially as I like to take a boy with me to wheel the bicycle up hills and to carry it over the hills that are not bridged. You will think that I am lazy out one soon learns to conserve his strength for other things. I am sorry that my friends do not write as often as I would like. You see it takes sometimes two months for a letter to get here and at times I am over six months before I have any news from Canada. Of course if I was in Portugal or any other European country it would not matter so much as there are newspapers there, but out here we have only one weekly paper, at least it is supposed to be weekly, but often it does not come for three weeks and then it is in Portuguese, and full of ads, and with little news that is of interest to us. However, it is something and, of course, being printed in Portuguese is no great hardship as I can read all I want in it anyway. The last few days I have been very busy as we are getting ready for school opening and today I have a cement job to attend to: job of making blackboards on the school walls and repairing others that are full of holes. If we had plaster of Paris here the job would be easy but with cement, it is difficult to get sand that is fine enough. Then also I am building a fireplace for cooking the boys' mess and that takes attention and what with one thing and another the day passes without much getting done. A fellow who comes out here must be prepared to set his hand to all sorts of jobs and if he has never done some things before then, he just has to try and if he makes a mistake then he has to do the work over again. If he knows little about things he can rest assured that the natives know far less and so he is not likely to get much criticism. Last week I bought a very fine leopard skin, not as big as one I saw, but very nicely marked; also I have a cheetah skin, some bows and arrows; basket work and some native musical instruments. I hope to have some more things of interest when I come home on furlough."

Following the address, Miss Helen Reid asked if their was any provision made for having this statement of Miss Wrong's carried to the different Canadian colleges, and said that she was willing to co-operate through the medium of the Universities' Women's League. Mr. MacKay, of the S.C.A., said that last year McGill had forwarded over $700 to the European students for the purpose of food. This, however, is a small item in comparison to the sums that are 1914. Many professors are in poor circumstances and the students, if anything, are living under conditions that are even worse. As an instance of this she said that 20,000 students are feeding at the soup kitchens that have been established and that they average one meal a day. Some of them have not clothes to wear, so they club together, buy a good suit of clothes and take turns wearing it; those who are not in luck for the day staying in bed until the other man returns with the common suit of wearing apparel. This extreme necessity of the students, said Miss Wrong, has brought about a great spirit of co-operation among the universities. Races that formerly would have nothing to do with each other are now coming together and this may bring about a better understanding between them. Miss Wrong expressed a wish that this co-operative movement, which is now so prevalent among the students of Central Europe might extend throughout the world, in order that the universities might lead in building up a new national spirit throughout the world.

expended in other college activities. Rev. Richard Roberts, D.D., of the American Presbyterian Church, suggested that an effort be made to organize a group of people who might make a collection of books and scientific instruments to be forwarded to some of these Central European colleges. Several people volunteered to serve on such a committee, and Mr. MacKay was appointed convener of the committee, which will be formed at an early date. Among those present were Dean Laing, Principal Ritchie, Dr. Fraser, J. S. Woodsworth, M.P., W. M. Birks, Francis Hankin, Rev. Allan Reid, and many other prominent men around Montreal, and from McGill.

32 partial students and 12 certificate students. Of these certificate students, eight are taking the course in public health nursing, and four the course in administration in schools of nursing. There are no candidates for the course in teaching in schools of nursing. This is not due to any lack of opening as the School has several applications for instructors and supervisors for which no recommendations can be made. It is ascribed partly to the fact that the course is somewhat more difficult than the others, instruction being given in several of the higher medical sciences. The entry requirement are also stiffer, complete high school instruction or matriculation being insisted upon. The McGill School for Graduate Nurses is the only one in Canada giving courses in teaching in schools of nursing and in administration in schools of nursing.

This year's advisory committee consists of: Miss Helen R. Y. Reid, M.D., B.A., chairman; Mrs. R. W. Reford; Miss M. Phillips, the Red Cross Society; Miss Mary Samuel, R.N.; Miss Z. Young, R.N.; the Montreal General Hospital; Miss M. F. Hersey, R.N.; the Royal Victoria Hospital; Dr. A. S. Lamb, M.D., B.P.E., university physical director; Dr. A. T. Bazin, D.S.O., M.D., assistant professor of surgery; and Dr. F. G. Finley, C.B., M.D., dean of the Faculty of Medicine.

ATHLETES AND SCHOLARSHIP

(From Seattle Post Intelligencer) That the athlete's scholarship is above the average at the present is shown in an eligibility list submitted to J. F. Bohler, the director of athletics in Washington State College by the college registrar regarding men turning out for spring athletic street scale saved the day.

Ball Men All Pass

Of a list of over sixty track men only two were ineligible for competition. The baseball eligibility list proved even more interesting in that from a list of fifty men, none were found to be below the requirements.

"The Pacific Coast conference scholarship requirement for men competing in athletics upholds a standard not paralleled by any conference in the country," stated Coach Bohler. "Since the organization of the coast conference, scholarship among members of the athletic teams has been emphasized by officials until now it is imperative for an athlete to be more than an average student in order to have a place on an athletic team."
